Global COVID-19 Guidelines for People with Disabilities

People with disabilities, or PWDs, are one of the most vulnerable and significantly impacted groups during the COVID-19 pandemic crisis. However, there is no one clear go-to website where PWDs can easily access the most up-to-date information during this rapidly evolving pandemic.

Formed to aid PWDs during the COVID-19 pandemic, Access COVID-19 Team has come up with a document to inform PWDs globally to better cope with the perils of the COVID-19 pandemic. By offering the most up-to-date guidelines on protective measures needed to be taken by key stakeholders across different parts of the world, it hopes to mitigate adverse impacts due to the lack of a centralized and accessible information pit-stop for PWDs.

As shown below, only a handful of governmental bodies have published guidelines to help PWDs. The Access COVID-19 team hopes that this compilation of global COVID-19 guidelines for PWDs will push more governmental agencies globally to take action and initiate publishing guidelines for PWDs if they have yet done so.

This is where your support can help save lives during this crisis. Please help us by sharing this document.

If possible, we hope to develop a comprehensive global COVID-19 Guideline for PWDs. However, this may not be feasible as conditions for PWDs may differ from place to place. Nevertheless, if you are interested in contributing to this project in any way, please email us contact at accesscovid19 dot com with the subject: [ACCESS_COVID-19]

If you have any up-to-date COVID-19 guidelines for PWDs at your location, please fill out this form as well at <http://tiny.cc/AccessCOVID19> so that we can add them to this document.

Sincerely,
Kunho Kim
Head of Access COVID-19 Team
